Heritage

A third-generation family business, the first iteration of Telegraph was created when our grandfather, Sture Pinnington, travelled to Indonesia and the Philippines in 1952, discovering new business opportunities at a time when much of Southeast Asia was considered inaccessible to the West.

One of the first people to import rattan furniture to the West, Sture created Skyward Design in Malmo, Sweden in 1976, selling contract standard rattan furniture wholesale all over Europe. The business moved to the UK in the 90s, where our father Joe focused on supplying contract furniture to the hospitality industry under the Telegraph Contract Furniture name.

In 2006, we took over the business with a focus on offering high end UK made bespoke furniture, and design led furniture from Europe. 15 years later Telegraph is still growing, with a highly skilled and knowledgeable team handling projects in a wide variety of countries and industries.
